Reagan fights to clear AWACS for Kingdom

WASHINGTON. Oct. 5 (AP) — U.S. President Ronald Reagan stepped up his fight Monday for congressional approval of his planned $8.5 billion Saudi Arabian arms deal. But the Senate Foreign Relations Committee delayed a preliminary vote.

FIVE YEARS WARRANTY

VOL. VI NO. 312

While Reagan tried to drum up support at a White House luncheon, the committee decided not to vote before Congress starts a weck-long recess Wednesday, meaning that a vote could not come before Oct. 14 at the The arms package, which includes five

AWACS radar planes, faces near-certain rejection by the committee unless terms of the sale are modified. Rengan called all Scente Republicans to the White House Tuesday to a personal push to save the deal. "The next step will be the president's personal intervention," Senator Howard H.

Baker Jr., told reporters, "I think President Reagan will make a special appeal. I still bave some hope.

Reagan, accusing opponents of the deal of wrong propaganda campaign, said Sunday be had not "really gone to bat yet." He said he does not intend to share ownership of the radar planes with Saudi Arabia.

He called leading forcign Policy figures from previous administrations to the White House for a luncheon and Rose Garden reception Tuesday to demonstrate, he said Sunday, "how many people of varying political backgrounds and views are in wholehearted support of the AWACS sale."

Referring to Kingdom's objections to proposals that U.S. airmen be included in the cockpit crews once the planes have been turned over Saudi Arabia, be said: "We have no intention of violating their sovereignty," Reagan said, "We believe this is in our best interest and certainly that of Saudi Arabia."

The president said that he also believed "there is no risk to the United States or our security in any way." He said he thought Saudi Arabia, in objecting to various propused compromises intended to overcome apposition in the Senate; was responding to misinformation about what is in mind."

The guest list included four former defense secretaries Harold brown, Elliott Richardson, Melvin Laird and Robert McNamara five former White House national security advisers - Gordon Gray, Walter Rostow, McGeorge Bundy. Henry Kissinger and Zhingniew Brzezinski — as well as three former chairmen of the joint chiefs of staff — Adın. Thomas Moorer, Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer and Gen. Maxwell Taylor.

Meanwhile, the proposed sale was sup-ported at a Senate Foreign Relations Committee hearing by former President carter's assistant secretary of state for the Middle East. Harold T. Saunders said a congressional veto of the sale would hurt long-term U.S. defense cooperation with Arab countries because it would be "further confirmation in Arab eyes that the United States has

Later. White House spokesman Larry Speaks said Monday all of them backed the sale of AWACS to the Saudi Arabia and the lunch would "demonstrate to the doubters that there is strong support...going back over six administrations."

Ali Khamenei is declared poll winner

TEHRAN, Oct. 5 (Agencies) — The leader of Iran's ruling Islamic Republican Party, Hojatoleslam Ali Khamenei, bas been elected president with 95 percent of votes cast, according to the official result announced by Tehran radio Monday.

Khamenei, 41, who was wounded in an assassination attempt in July, is the third president in post-revolutionary Iran and the first clergyman to hold the post. The radio said he received 16,007,972 of the 16.846,996 votes cast in the elections last Friday. The radio was quoting figures released by Iran's Interior

Two million more people voted than during the previous election in July which brought President Muhammad Ali Rajai to power. Rajai, who was killed in a bomb blast in August, succeeded Abolhassan Bani-Sadr. Iran's first president. Bani-Sadr, who was ousted in June, is now in exile in France.

Medical breakthrough Heart patient 'well'

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1981 DHUL HILJA 8, 1401 A.H.

CAPE TOWN. Oct. 5 (R) - American Rick Anderson, who underwent a beart transplant operation Sunday was in satisfactory condition Monday, a spokesman for Groote Schuur Hospital said.

Surgeons made an 800-mile (1.300-km) round trip by air to Port Elizabeth, on the Indian Ocean, to check whether the heart of a student killed in a car crash was suitable for 29-year-old Anderson (of Smithville. Missouri) and then bring it back to Cape

The team returned to Cape Town with the heart of Marius Minnie, 18, in a newly developed machine which maintains the organ at low temperature in fluid. It was believed to be the first time a heart had been flown so far for a transplant.

The machine, which the team bopes can keep a heart in good condition for up to 24 hours, is being hailed by medical experts here as a major breakthrough,

Professor Christian Barnard, who did yesterday's transplant pioneered heart transplant at Groote Schuur 14 years ago. He predicted recently that hearts would soon be flown around the world for transplanting. The new technique could bring fresh hope to patients needing new hearts who often face long waits for suitable

It was the second new heart for the patient, who was reported in satisfactory condition after the operation. He had received one in 1979, also in the Groote Schuur Hospital, but his body rejected it after a few weeks. Doctors say he has a condition which makes it difficult to match organ tissues.

The hospital reported today that there were no complications after yesterday's seven hour "piggyback" in which the new heart supports Anderson's own heart. The World's first heart transplant was carried out at Groote Schuur in 1967 by a team under Barnard.

Winston Wicomb, who headed the team which flew to Port Elizabeth, said today he had been concerned about the effects of pressure changes during the flight on the portable unit used to keep the heart alive. Before the flight, the unit, had only been lested in static conditions.

Wicomb said that during the flight he found the solution was overflowing from the unit and be was forced to switch the machine off without being sure he could

Addressing General Assembly

Saud calls on U.N. to adopt Fahd plan

point peace plan as a guideline was suggested to the United Nations Monday by Saudi Arabia's Foreign Minister Prince Saud Al-Faisal. In the face of Israeli defiance of past U.N. resolutions, Prince Saud said that a combination of past Security Council resolutions should be decided upon which would include the Saudi Arabian peace plan.

The eight-point plan includes the complete Israeli withdrawal from Arab territories occupied in the 1967 Middle East war, including becamben; the essected of Jewish settlements from the West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip; the creation of a Palestinian state with the holy city of Jerusalem as its capital; endorsement of the right of Palestinians to return to their former bomes or payment to them of just compensa-tion; and confirmation of all states in the region to live in peace.

The foreign minister called on the United States to assume an "impartial position in the Middle East and not to cast the region into the cauldron of superpower rivalry." He equally castigated the United States and the Soviet Union for " endeavoring to create a military presence in the Indian Ocean and Addressing the 36th session of the U.N. General Assembly, Prince Saud said Saudi Arabia was " keen on keeping this region outside the conflict and preserving it as a zone of peace rather than a theater of conflict." He was reiterating the Kingdom's longstanding public posture.

"The Kingdom is gravely concerned about the recent announcement of strategic cooperation between the United States and Israel," Prince Saud said." This is likely to cast our region into the cauldron of conflict between the two superpowers.

In his presentation at the United Nations, Prince Saud voiced concern about a number of key issues. He urged the international community to join in condemning the " flagrant Soviet occupation of Afgianistan" and in demanding the complete and unconditional withdrawal of some 85,000 Soviet troops from the country.

Excerpts from his presentation follow: International relations should not be built on subjection and capitulation or become dependent on power and begemony. They must be governed by equality and justice and stable and objective equations of mutual interest. " Saudi Arabia has a fixed set of principles for dealing with other states," he said." They are based on respect for national sovereignties, equality and non-interference in the interoal affairs of others."

The Kingdom, he said, was one of the signatories of the San Francisco charter which established the United Nations and has ever since been a strong supporter of the basic aims of the organization. " While the U.N. bas done a great deal of good wurk," he said, it would not be realistic to say that it has

MiG attack is protested by Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Oct. 5 (Agencies) -Pakistan Monday formally protested what it said was the second attack on a southwestero border post by Afghan MiG warplanes, an official spokesman said in Islamabad. The Afghan charge d'affaires was summoned to the foreign ministry and handed the protest note, he said.

A defense ministry statement said a pair of MiG-17s strafed the Domandai Post, about 160 kms north of Quetta, capital of Baluchistan province, Sunday moroing. There were no casualties or damage. The post was hit in an almost identical incident Sept. 5, which was pointed out io the protest, the state-run Pakistan television said. The civilian workers reportedly were wounded then.

Domandai is located astride a major supply route used by anti-regime fighters from Afghanistan's Kandahar province.

A report reaching New Delhi from Afghanistan said Soviet warplanes have been flying night-time sorties recently against Afghan fighters ringing Kabul to counter stepped-up pressure on the capital by the rebels. Soviet MiG jetfighters and helicopter gunships were heard taking off from Kabul airport just after sunset each night, according to the report from a Kabul source who has heen accurate in the past.

Aircraft could be heard bombing villages on the outskirts of the capital where the fighters gather to launch raids into the city, the report said, adding that sometimes the air activity last week continued beyond 10 p.m. Soviet and Afgban artiflery could be heard thundering in the distance until dawn,

In Kabul itself, anti-government forces attacked and looted a police station and the headquarters of an armed militia unit during the night of Sept. 29, the report said. It said the rebels seized 350 Soviet-style rifles and several jeeps and trucks at the police station. There were casualties in both attacks, but figures were not available.

achieved all the goals that the founders had set for it.

Prince Saud said that the U.N. exists in a world that does not fully believe in it and its objectives and is in the midst of big and conflicting powers and states accustomed to conquest and hegemony.

He deplored the use of power in international relations and the growing gap between the ricb and the poor states and the violations of the sovereignties of smaller states by the bigger ones. Aggression continues and is spreading while the legitimate rights of selfdetermination for some people bave been

" The U.N. must be strong enough to face up to these challenges and come up with the means to ensure the needs of the international community and protect the rights of all nations," be said. "The U.N. should be enabled to be an effective instrument to implement its resolutions.

This is the real test of effectiveness," be said. For without the power to implement resolutions, the U.N.'s role will weaken and the aspirations of the nations and their hopes in it will be sbaken.

"Maintaining world peace and security on one band and laying the foundation for a just framework of political, economic and social relations on the other, are dependent to a large extent on the ability of the U.N. to carry out its resolutions," be said.

He placed special responsibility on the big powers for maintaining world peace and quality because of the enromous capabilities that they possess and to protect the interest and independence of the smaller states.

"History is the best witness that the division of the world between conflicting forces will in the ultimate analysis lead to armed conflict between them," he said.

But he warned that while past world wars had done a great deal of damage. a new global war will obliterate the world.

He called for a change in the logic of superpowers, which aims at dividing the spheres of influence. He said that at one time the superpower detente had been a significant development but has now reached a dead end because it was not meant to be a true international detente for the benefit of all; but merely a way of understanding between the two superpowers to impose their will on the

He said that this continuous attempt to compete for influence and polarize the others is threateoing to lead to a new cold war. He said this threatens the Middle East regioo in -particular, which is suffering from the present tense situation.

"Such grave strategic rivalry is aggressively approaching the region as the superpowers are trying to achieve a military balance in the Indian Ocean and the Arabian Sea which makes us very concerned to keep this rivalry out of the region as it must remain a zone of peace," he said.

He expressed deep concern with the reported strategic cooperation between the U.S. and Israel which he said will propel the region into the cauldron of conflict between

GENEVA, Oct. 5 (AFP) - A report published by a United Nations task force here has pinpomted 20-40 known chemical compounds, cummon to a handful of key industries responsible for most cases of on-the-job

The report, issued by the U.N. International Labor Office, is the work of a conference of 370 specialists from 36 countries in Helsinki last August. It found that, of 60-70,000 known chemical compounds to which humans may be exposed, some 900 have produced cancer in laboratory animals. Of these. says the report, 20-40 have proven cancer agents in humans.

Most of them ere found on the job, the report said. In chemical, insulation, mining. gas and chromium industries, the culprits are coal dust and tar, asbestos, arsenic, mustard. gas, nickel, hematite and berrylium. The high-hazard jobs are miner, smelter, machinist and chimney sweep. The chief risk: Lung

In the dry cleaning industry, auramine, benzidine. Type-B naptha and 4-aminodiphenyl are the causes. Bladder cancer is the chief risk.

In the furniture and leather industries. wood and leather dust can cause cancer of the nasal cavity.

Zine refinery workers and battery makers cancer agents risk prostate cancer from exposure to cadmium, says the report, and significant causes of skin cancer include shale oil, X-rays and ultraviolet rays. The report says cancer is responsible for 20 percent of all deaths in developed nations, and 80-90 percent of all types of cancer are linked directly or indirectly to the environment. It notes that, apart from environmental factors, such personal habits as overeating and poor nutrition, and abuse of tobacco and alcohol, are among the chief causes of cancer

Heart ailments, accounting for 50 perceot of all deaths, are by contrast more often attributed to aging, the report notes.

A convention adopted by the labor office - the permanent secretariat of the International Labor Organization - in 1974 and since ratified by 16 countries has recommended replacement of carcinogenic substances, establishment of a list of prohibited or controlled carcinogens, research on work-related cancer risks, medical control of high-risk jobs and worker education.

The Helsinki conference, under the office's aegies, was sponsored by the Finland Institute of Work Hygiene, the World Health Organization and the International Center for Cancer Research.

Pilgrims prepare for Arafat ascent

MAKKAH. Oct. 5 (SPA) — About two million pilgrims are preparing to travel to Mina. from where they will ascend Arafat en masse in a show of Muslim unity Wednesday.

To ease the movement of the pilgrims, the government has provided assistance through various projects. Road networks, bridges and tunnels costing more than SR2 billion have been built to ease traffic congestion in Makkah and the holy places. Some of the bridges have been linked with Haram mosque.

The Ministry of Pilgrimage and Endowments has carried out projects worth more than SR680 million to ease the pilgrims movements. The ministry built and improved water plans and reservoirs, planted road signs and named each area in the holy places, set up shades, guidance centers and pilgrim stations and expanded Namira mosque in Arafat and Al-Khayf mosque in Mena. It also established information centers at the border posts and organized seminars to guide pilgrims and brief them on Hajj rites.

Food stuffs and consumer goods have made available in sufficient quantities by the state, which asserted that there will be no shortage this year of supplies. Senior officials of the Commerce Alinistry are constantly visiting the markets and pilgrim areas to check prices and the availability of foodstuffs. In addition, the Ministry of Posts, Telegraph and Telephones is helping pilgrims contact their home countries. The PTT Ministry installed telephone hooths to enable pilgrims to contact relatives from any location in the holy places. Coin telephones have also been established in many locations.

More than 50 groups from the National Guard's military and technical schools are deployed throughout the holy places to regulate traffic and maintain order on King Abdul Aziz Street. Royal Palace street and King Abdul Aziz bridge, according to Prince Khaled ibn Abdullah ihn Abdul Aziz, the guard's secretary for the Western Province.

The prince told newsmen after inspecting guard installations in Mina. Arafat and Muzdalefa that the hospital has been prepared and equipped to receive any emergency case. He added that the National Guard's information and cultural center in Mina is an integrated complex providing plenty of information material. He also said National Guard fire-fighting brigades will assist civil defense forces in putting down any fire that might crupt and face any emergency as instructed by King Khaled and Crown Prince Fahd.

Prince Khaled visited the guard's military and technical schools in Mina, the main camp in the region where prominent Arah and Islamic guests are living, the religious affairs department, the cultural and infromation center, the central library and the brochure distribution point, the center for lost persons, the medical service camp and other installa-

Monday along with the medical services department, which opened an emergency hospital in Mina. The hospital has 56 doctors, 34 nurses and 21 pharmacists. Its capacity could be increased from the ordinary 21 beds to 50 beds on emergencies. The department also has opened several outpatient clinics near the hospital. The clinics include all specializations, and two laboratories that operate around the clock.

The guard's cultural and information center also began its activities, which incorporate a closed-circuit broadcasting station and a library equipped with various religious books and references. In addition, the center distributes press material, photographs and television cassettes for pressmen. It also has religious scholars and guides who respond to inquiries by pilgrims about the pilgrimage and other religious matters. Meanwhile, the Health Ministry's departments operating in the holy places are turning in regular reports on health conditions of pilgrims. The ministry operates seven hospitals in the holy places which already began working. They include the Mina hospital, which has 300 beds and a similar number of emergencies. It has 10 outpatient clinics and five emergency halls. The hospital is manned by more than 1,000 personnel.

Crown Prince Fahd has issued directives to huild six sun stroke treatment centers since the affliction hits a large number of pilgrims. The ministry implemented the instructions by installing the sun stroke units at Makkah's hospitals and some of those in the holy places. The stroke treatment centers are equipped with advanced devices and methods.

with advanced devices and methods.

The ministry set up medical teams to accompany the state's guests. in addition to providing medical supervision for guests of the Muslim World League and the Pilgrimage and Endowments Ministry. Children who lose their parents also will receive special attention from the ministry, An assembly has been formed to identify people who die during the pilgrimage and notify their relatives.

Health Minister Dr. Hussein Al-Jazaeri assured King Khaled in a cable Monday on health conditions of pilgrims and citizens according to reports from hospitals and health centers. No epidemic disease has been discovered so far, the minister said.

Majed reaffirms respect for pilgrimage sanctity

JEDDAH. Oct. 5 (SPA) — Makkah Governor Prince Majed Monday reaffirmed the Kingdom's determination to prevent any exploitation of "the greatest congregation in history, or to prevent disruption and deviation from the noble objectives of the pilgrim-

Prince Majed said in a statement to Okaz that the Kingdom will not hesitate to take firm measures against anyone who does not respect himself. "No respect is given to anyone who does not fear God and observe the sanctity of the holy places," the prince said. He revealed the seizure of pamphlets and pictures that called for the glorification of individuals, and tried to misinterpret Islamic principles and merge it with politics. "This is considered insulting to Islam and is rejected by the Sharia," Prince Majed added.

The Kingdom is a country open to all, and from its Islamic responsibilities, provides all services to those who worship God, the prince said. "However, it will not overlook any ill intentions and does not rule out the possibilities of irresponsible acts. Therefore, it deals with each case separately, without any prejudice, by what its responsibilities necessitate." he added.

Any Muslim will not be prevented from performing his religious rites, if his purpose is purely to worship God, Prince Majed said, No extraordinary measures were taken against abnormal cases that have been discovered, he added.

Asked if the Kingdom has any plans to limit the number of pilgrims, Prince Majed said that did not put any limit on the number of pilgrims. It refuses to do so in consistence with the principle of ability-pilgrimage is the fifth pillar of Islam that should be accomplished by those who are able at least once in a lifetime — which was mentioned in the Holy Quran, he said. But, if it is the wish of Islamic countries to limit the number of pilgrims, the Kingdom will respect such a wish.

He added that Saudi Arabia provides all the services and facilities to a pllgrim arising from what it believes is its duty toward pilgrims. The government takes great care to ensure that maximum facilities are provided for the pilgrims, avoiding any extraordinary measures which are its natural rights to preserve safety, he said. "The Kingdom holds good intentions to every visitor and does not discriminate on sex, color or nationality," the prince stressed.

Sadat fears invasion of Sudan by Libyans accused Libya Monday of preparing to invade Sudan with the backing of the Soviet

In an interview with the weekly newspaper Mayo journal of his ruling National Democratic Party, he said Egypt and Sudan were holding continuous consultations in ways of thwarting any takeover attempt. "I am really worried about Sudan and cannot ignore the dangers surrounding it..., "the Egyptian leader said. "That is why I told the West that I cannot watch indifferently if Libva tries to invade Sudan, undermine its security or threatens its border."

Vice-President Hosni Mubarak flew to Washington Thursday with an urgent message from Sadat to President Reagan appealing to the U.S. to provide Sudan with arms because of the risk of Soviet-Libyan intervention. Sadat said in the interview: "Libya is preparing for a big plot aimed at Sudan. It is also obvious that Moscow is using Libya as a cat's paw to get rid of regimes hostile to it in the region.

President Sadat said Egyptian reconnaissance planes once foiled an attempt by Libya to invade Sudan. But he did not say when the

"We will be prepared for the worst' the agency quoted Arafat as saying.

The strategic alliance, which is roundly attacked in the Arab world, was struck in early September wheo Israeli Prime Minister Menahem Begin met in Washingtoo with the American Presideot Ronald Reagan.

Details of the alliance are still being worked out. So far, it appears the United States will be allowed to store military medical supplies in Israel. The American Sixtb Fleet will conduct joint maneuvers with the Israeli navy in the Mediterranean and the United States will give Israel access to American-gathered intelligence.

Also Sunday, a spokesman for the United Nations in Lebanon said Arafat met in Beirut with U.N. Commander Lt. Gcn. William Callaghan to discuss ways of relaxing tensions in southern Lebanon. # Arafat to hold talks with Chinese leaders PEKING, Oct. 5 (AFP) — Yasser Arafat, leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), will visit China in the next few days for talks with Chinese leaders.

Announcing this bere Monday, PLO representative in Peking Tayeb Abdul Rahim said the international situation, particularly that in the Middle East, would be the main subject of discussions. Chinese leaders at the talks will be Communist Party Chairman Hu Yaobang, Party Vice-Chairman Deng Xiaoping, Premier Zhao Ziyang and Vice-Premier and Foreign Minister Huang Hua.

China has excellent relations with the PLO and bas always supported its positions, notably that on self-determination for the Palestinian people. Arafat, who is chairman of the PLO executive committee, has made two previous visits to China, in 1964 and 1970. Rahim said the coming visit was "very

China renews invitation to Taiwan chief

PEKING. Oct. 5 (Agencies) - The Chinese authorities have again invited Taiwanese President Chiang Ching-kuo to visit China, the Guangming Daily reported Monday. The invitation comes in the wake of Peking proposals for a reunification with the Nationalist Republic of China under which the Communists and the Nationalists would, to an extent, share power.

The newspaper said the invitation had been made by Mrs. Chen Zhijian, one of the best friends of the Taiwanese president's late mother. She invited Chiang to visit the grave of his mother, Mao Fumei, in eastern China's Zheijiang province.

Chiang was first invited to China for the funeral of his aunt Soong Chingling, widow of the late Dr. Sun Yatsen, who died last May. The Nationalists so far have turned down these invitations and the latest proposals to discuss reunification with Peking.

Cambodians near accord on anti-Viet coalition

BANGKOK, Oct. 5 (AFP) - Cambodia's. three main resistance groups have reached an apparent turning point in their bid to set up an anti-Vietnamese coalition, several sources said Monday.

In Tam, chief representanve of former head of state Prince Norodom Sihanouk, said in a telephone interview he would leave bere Friday to consult the prince and to visit the United States.

A terse communique issued after Sunday night's sixth session said the tripartite talks. which are taking place in Bangkok, had reached "an important stage." The statement was released by representatives of the ousted Khmer Rouge government, which agreed at a meeting in Singapore last month to try to set up a coalition with Sihanouk and the group led by onetime Premier Son Sann.

Inside sources said the next meeting would probably be postponed until late this month to permit in-depth consultations with leaders of the three factions. Reports reaching here from Belgrade last week said Sihanouk would visit Yugoslavia in a few days and possibly bold talks there with titular Khmer Rouge leader Khieu Samphan.

Western diplomats monitoring the talks report the main stumbling block seems to be an insistence by the Khmer Rouge that the political institutions of so-called Democratic Kampuchea be maintained. Under the constitution adopted by the then-ruling Khmer Rouge in January, 1976, Cambodia's supreme organ is a national assembly which chooses the government ministers and names the chairman of the state presidium and his two vice chairmen.

According to the diplomats, the non-Communist factions have rejected the Khmer Rouge demand because it would subordinate any future coalition government to the Khmer Rouge-constituted assembly. Though there has been no reported progress toward narrowing the differences on this point, Indochina watchers do oot believe the talks are in immediate danger of collapsing because it is not in the interest of any group to break them off.

Basically hostile to each other for deepseated political and personal reasons, the factions undertook to form an alliance under unrelenting pressure from opponents of the Vietnamese conquest of Cambodia, including China, the United States and the fivemember Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN). The factions, anxious to obtain all forms of aid from these countries, do not dare risk infuriating them by breaking off the dialogue only a month after it was begun, observers believe.

"It would be suicidal," said one veteran analyst. "If they want arms, they have no choice but to keep talking." According to this analyst, the only likely prospect for movement may stem from possible Khmer Rouge concern that the Son Sann group could pull out despite the furor it would provoke.

In a hint of the pressure being brought to bear, the English-language Bangkok Post, which generally reflects officials thinking front-paged a report Sunday saying Thailand may halt the use of Bangkok as a venue for the talks unless a breakthrough comes soon. Western diplomats generally agree, however, that the three groups are unlikely to make any significant headway toward a working alliance in the near future.

BONN. Oct. 5 (Agencies) — Controversy over a peace rally which sponsors hope will be the largest in postwar German history is isulating Chancellor Helmut Schmidt from his party and threatening Bonn's support for NATO defense policies.

The various religious, uninn, environmental and anti-war groups organizing the Oct. 10 rally say they expect 100,000 to 150,000 marchers to converge on the West German capital. Schmidt has been quoted in the West German press as telling his closest advisers the rally is a "direct challenge" to his government and may incite violence.

But former Chancellor Willy Brandt, as chairman of Schmidt's Social Democrat Party has refused to forbid members from attending the rally, Brandt, a Nubel Peace Prize winner, wants to ensure that the SPD does not lose its youth vote. # Weinberger, Brown differ over new defense program

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5 (Agencies) — U.S. Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger has said the United States faces a "period of considerable danger" from nuclcar attack in the mid-1980s, but added that Reagan administration strategy would close this so-called "window of vulnerability" as quickly as possible.

Former Secretary of Defense Harold Brown, on the nther hand, said Sunday that the administration's newly announced plan for deployment of MX missiles will provide less protection than the nne proposed by former U.S. President Jimmy Carter.

The Carter administration accepted an air force proposal to disguise the whereabouts of the nuclear missiles by moving 200 of them around among 2,400 shelters in Utah and Nevada, President Reagan proposed Friday that instead of this 100 MX missiles be placed in existing Titan and Minuteman missile silos which would be reinforced to protect them

The proposal is subject to congressional veto and hearings on it open Mnnday in the Senate. Weinberger, appearing nn a CBS Television program, said, "if we had continued along the path we were to follow in 1980, there would have been a very wide vulnerability window opening and little done

He said the proposed deployment of the MX missiles combined with the B-1 bomber and other components of the Reagan bluenring constituted "a vastly strengthened program to close the window of vulnerability soon after it opens as possible."

Brown, appearing nn "Issues and Answers' nn ABC Television, said, "The Soviet Uoion has added onto its missile forces enough warheads with good eoough accuracy." The Carter administration defense secretary said deployment of the 200 missiles in the western desert would "not have made nur land-based force completely invulnerahle" hut would have impraved its invulnerahility. Brown said the Reagan proposal is "better than nothing" hut "doesn't make me very comfortable."

Republican Sen. Jnhn Tower said Sunday Reagan's strategic nuclear program, particularly plans for the MX missile, contradicted expert military and technical opinion. Sen. Tower chairs the Senate Armed Services Committee, which is to hear Weinberger defend the program in the hope of congressional approval.

The senatur, in a televisinn interview, said the program was nnt supported by U.S. military chiefs and its fate in Congress was uncertain. His committee would insist on hearing the opinions of experts, whether or not they were consistent with the views of the administration, he said.

Weinberger denied there bad been a lack of consultation with military and technical experts. "... The ideas of all these people we have clearly before him (Reagan) and the fact that he did not accept them doesn't mean that they were frozen out of the decision process," the defense secretary said.

The rally's organizers contend it is not anti-American, but a plea for detente and disarmament in both East and West. The opposition Christian Democrats counter that the demonstration hints of a "dangerous one-sided view by stirring up opposition in the NATO plans." To Schmidt's embarrassment, 48 of the SPD's 218 members of parliament have signed a statement saying they supported the rally and would attend.

Although Schmidt's coalitinn wnn a landslide victory a year ago this month, a lagging economy and his party's factionalism have aroused speculatinn he wan't be able to complete the fnur-year term.

Faced with the dissent in his party, Schmidt has threatened to resign if the Social Democrats do not support the NATO decision at their congress next April in Munich.

Observers said the Oct. 10 demnnstration is anti-Schmidt, to the extent that the chancellnr has been passionate in his assertion nf the need for the missiles — which can strike the Snviet Union in five minntes - to counterbalance the Soviet SS-20 nuclear warbeads, mnre than 260 nf which are already targetted nn Western Europe.

The composition of the demonstrators was reportedly another reason for concern to the Social Democrats, who feared loss of their youthful supporters. In municipal elections last week in Lower Saxony, the party lnst eight percent of the vote it won in last year's legislative vnte, while the Christian Democrats gained 2.2 percent and the Free Democrats of Foreign Minister Hans-Dietricb Genscher stayed level.

The young ecologists and pacifist sympathizers, hitherm generally Social Democratic supporters, received 3.6 percent of the vote, in the first election in which they had participated.

Emigration from Cuba foreseen

Cuban regime of Fidel Castro is facing its worst-ever economic crisis and could resort to a new emigratinn drive to rid itself of political opponeots, a United States intelligence expert has said.

In a report released here Sunday, Central ... Intelligence Agency (CIA) foreign analyst ... Russell Swanson said Cuba faces a bleak. economic decade. "Revolutionary fervor among both the young and the nld is on the wane because of continuing consumer austerity," he said.

The report said that gains in health and education had been more than offset by a steady decline in the supply of basic primary products such as sugar, rice, beef, and coffee since the 1960s.

It said Cuba's economic decline was illustrated by a hudgetary growth rate that had falleo from about 10 perceot a year between 1965 and 1975, tn nnly 1.3 percent in 1980. Swanson said that although the crisis poses no immediate political threat to the Castro gov- ... ernment, it could lead to "major systematic.

He said Havana could try to defuse internal discontent through large-sacle emigration as it had already dooe three times in the last 22 years. The report added that falling mnrale had led to deliberate work slowdowns and absenteeism, sharp drops in labor productivity and corresponding jumps in "hlack maket activities and other econnmic crimes'

MORE REPRESSION

As of December, the officers of the Israeli army who administer the occupation of the West Bank and Gaza will change their military uniforms for civilian dress. The work of oppression and expropriation will go on, and no doubt intensify, but no uniform will be in sight. This has been hailed as a step forward by all and sundry. And it comes through the "good graces" of Ariel Sharon, the Israeli minister of defense.

This is not the first time the Israelis contemplate this kind of window dressing for their illegal occupation of Arab land. Before this, there was the so-called Allon Plan, which sought the same end of keeping Israel's authority while changing the guise in which that authority is dressed.

That the change in the present case will have to be accompanied by more repression is certain, as part of Sharon's plan is a sixfold increase in the number of Israeli settlers on the West Bank, which will mean. inevitably, confiscation of even more land, and the corresponding escalation of resistance.

It is a clear fact by now that Israel, far from having in prospect any relinquishing of the occupied territories, is in fact engaged in tightening its hold on them. Neither the so-called "autonomy" for the Palestinians as contemplated by the Camp David side, nor any real selfdetermination is on the cards, which means that the whole question of peace in the Middle East is still in square one.

Israel feels well able to afford this, as America is more on its side than ever before — regardless of the mounting danger to the area, and through it to the international community as a whole.

Mugabe baffled by increasing white exodus

SALISBURY ---The pace of white emigration from Zimbabwe, the former British rebel colony of Rhodesia, is increasing 18 months after the end of the bitter seven-year war between black nationalists and the country's one-time white rulers. Whites began to leave during the war but their numbers have shot up

According to official figures 12,500 people left the country between January and July this year, 50 percent more than during the same period last year which, in turn, showed an increase over a similar time span in 1979. Although the figures do not indicate a racial hreakdown it is officially accepted that nearly all of those leaving are white.

A home in a comfortable, once exclusively white suburh of the capital. Salisbury, provides typical and tangible evidence of the white exodus.

Water sprinklers saturate lush lawns, the swimming pool is sparkling, the tennis court's immacu-late, garden boys tend rose busbes, Dozens of people, many of them black, who in almost 100 years of white rule would never have been allowed through the front gate of such a home, are buying up its contents as the auctioneer's bammer falls on yet another white family's place in the sun.

Soon the rooms will be picked clean, the crockers. glasses, utensils, records, books, paintings and furniture scattered across the city while Ibeir former owners depart for another land with little more than

When Prime Minister Robert Mugabe, the former guerrilla leader, came to power in April 1980 after a national election he launched a postwar policy of national reconciliation hailed internationally as a model of its kind. The whites, the old enemy, were told repeatedly the new government valued their skills and wanted them to stay on to help to build truly multiracial nation.

And yet the whites bave been leaving in ever increasing numbers. Mugabe and his advisers are reported by aides to be perplexed by the exodus. They feel they have leant over backward to comfort and calm the nervous, defeated minority,

Most whites still live in luxury undreamed of in most areas of the world, even in advanced Western nations. Black servants administer to the daily needs, two cars fill garages, swimming pools are commonplace in sprawling gardens, often with ten-

Despite losing the bush war, the 180,000 whites still enjoy a vastly better standard of living than the victorious blacks, who outnumber them 40-to-one. They still earn, on average, 10 times more. This limits the lengths to which Mugabe can go in assisting the minority community which is so important for Zimbabwe's economy. Some critics within his own political party argue he has already been kinder 10 the whites than they deserve after what the critics regard as a century of oppression of the black population.

Commercial agriculture, business and industry remain largely in white hands. White administrators, trained and experienced to levels denied blacks by previous white governments, help keep the country running smoothly. Emigration of skilled white railway workers has been a factor in Zimbabwe's crippled transport system, resulting in several fuel shortages and the loss of $10 million a week in landlocked exports.

Government ministers say whites are being driven out by the force of their own racism, unable to live under black rule. Many whites argue that with black politicians constantly attacking what they regard as the evils of the white past, there is no future for them in this country despite what the vernment says about reconciliation.

Whites have been alarmed particularly by what they regard as the country's deteriorating health and education services. Since independence, school classes have become racially mixed and farreaching changes are planned in curricula to change the old colonial emphasis on training children for British and Soulb African universities to providing an education more suited to Zimbabwe's needs.

Whites fear the French and Afrikaans languages taught in schools will be replaced by the African dialects of Shona and Sindebele. They claim physics will lose out to peasant farming, European history will vanish in favor of the story of African national-

The best hospitals, hitherto reserved for whites. have been opened to all races and the minority must line up for treatment along with everyone else. Traditional African medicines and treatments, not understood by whites, are being introduced. Taxes have been raised across the board to pay for better social services, and most taxpavers are white.

Veteran white liberal politician Ahrn Palley says he believes whiles accept black majority rule intellectually, but bave so far failed to adjust to its practical implications. "We are still a dichotomous society. What benefits one must detract from another and in the process the whites must go down." he said. "Top dogs never like an egalitarian society."

Namibia skeptical about S. Africa's intentions

WINDHOEK -South Africa has indicated its qualified acceptance of the new American initiative for independence elections in Namibia. But the plan still lacks detail which could take many months of painstaking shuttle diplomacy to work out — and offer many opportunities for further stalling.

At best, it is difficult to see any settlement being concluded in 1982, which the foreign ministers of the five-nation Western Contact Group gave as their target after meeting in New York last month. Two years would seem a more realistic minimum rime. But it may not come about at all. Most informed observers here in the Namibian capital remain skeptical about South Africa's intentions and see its acceptaoce of the plan as a return to the "two-track policy" it followed during the last initiative of the Contact Group, which ran from 1978 till

This is a policy of keeping all options open for as long as possible; of playing along with the settlement progress but spinning it out to the maximum. while at the same time building up the international Democratic Turnhalle Alliance (DTA) as a de facto government io what has been termed a creeping UDI.

If at any stage the electoral climate looks propitious for the DTA. South Africa can clinch the deal for an election. If not, it can continue with the creeping UDI without ever precipitating a confrontation with the West by closing the door on the negotiation process.

One factor remains constant since the end of the first initiative last January: South Africa still does not want to see the South-West African People's Organization (SWAPO) take over the territory. Yet that prospect now looks more likely than ever. if elections are held. But another important factor has changed, and this could make the difference.

The South African government is desperately anxious not to fall out with the Reagan administration. After years of isolation, it values Washington's new protectiveness and wants to keep this for issues of closer domestic concern to South Africa. It does not want to forfeit it in a confrontation over a mandated territory. Also, Pretoria realizes that the Reagan administration will almost certainly negotiate the most favorable deal on Namibia it is likely to see. So it would be prudeot to clinch the deal, while Reagan is still alive and well.

However, the factors that count against clinching the deal are just as weighty from Pretoria's point of view. If Swapo were to win the elections and take over Namibia, the polifical consequences for P. W. Botba's government would be devastating.

Already be is in trouble with a right-wing backlash after his mildly reformist rhetoric last year. Trying to stop this has become his number one political concern. If he were seen to be responsible for a SWAPO takeover, the backlash would be intensified enormously.

Even more serious, perbaps, would be the impact on South African blacks. Coming on top of Samora Macbel's triumph in Mozambique and Robert Mugabe's in Zimbabwe, it would be a huge morale booster — as well as a vindication of the idea that guerrilla warfare is the only practical way to win liberation from white rule.

It would also be seen as a disaster in terms of current military thinking about South Africa's strategic interests. This is rooted in the concept that South Africa faces a "total onslaught" directed from Moscow, in which Namibia is the lynchpin. Most independent observers here believe SWAPO would win elections in Namibia. The DTA chairman, Dirk Mudge, makes a hrave show of confidence but even some of his closest associates wonder how genuine this is. "Dirk talks election, but be doesn't really want one." remarked onc. The crunch issue for South Africa is bow to avoid the risk of a SWAPO victory without angering and perhaps losing the support of the Reagan administration. But opportunities for stalling will abound.

Haggling over detail took two years last time. before it bogged right down. If South Africa cbooses to, it can play the same game again. -

SWAPO is favored in independence poll

By Robert Weller

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa -If a new plan for the independence of this territory succeeds, most people here believe the black guerrillas who bave been fighting for 15 years will easily win the first free elections - just as guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe swept to power in Zimbabwe.

"I don't know whether we will get as many votes as Mugabe, but we will get a majority." said Dannie Tjongararo, an influential member of the unofficial internal wing of the South-West Africa People's Organization, in an interview with the Associated

"Most people say that because in Africa so far terrorists always had it their way," said Dirk Mudge, white leader of the multi-racial party that would be SWAPO's main opponent. Although no one has yet seen the latest independence plan prepared by five Western nations, it is widely expected here that the plan will lead to elections and independence from South Africa as early as 1982. Mudge said his Democratic Turnhalle Alliance (DTA) has a good chance of winning, but be conceded in an interview that conservative white resistance to the DTA's efforts to move away from the apartheid laws imposed by South Africa could make a DTA victory impossible

Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, which like SWAPO led a guerrilla war against white-minority rule, won 57 of 80 seats in the February 1980 balloting.

Mudge says ZANU won because its guerrillas were allowed to retain their weapons during the election. "In Africa." he said, "wheo you carry a gun you are seeo as a master."

Solomon Mifima, a founding member of SWAPO who quit after being detained oo SWAPO orders in Tanzania and Zambia, said," If guerrillas are allowed to come in with their weapons they would be regarded as liberators."

Mudge wants an election plan that would prevent

SWAPO guerrillas, most of whom are in Angola to the north, from entering the country in uniforms or with weapons. South African troops would he withdrawn gradually with an international force supervising the ceasefire and voting. The five Western oations sponsoriog the independence plan for the territory, also called Namibia, hope to win acceptance of their still-undisclosed plan in October. The five are Canada, Britain, the United States, West Germany and France.

As was argued in Rhodesia by whites, Mudge says the victims of most SWAPO guerrilla attacks bave been blacks and "the people are sick and tired of murderers." "We have not gotten our propaganda across," said a white high school teacher who teaches at a black boarding school here. "Most of my pupils believe the South African army is killing their people, not SWAPO."

Mifima, vice president of the bitterly anti-SWAPO splinter called SWAPO Democrats, said. "SWAPO will get credit from many people, like ZANU did, for leading the armed struggle." (AP)

The great message of King Khaled to the guests of Allah (pilgrims) advising them to keep more closely to the Hoty Ouran and Sunnah (the Prophet's teachings) and to follow a spirit of collective work for the success of the Muslim nation in confronting all challenges figured for editorial comments in Monday's newspapers.

Hailing the King's speech at the Holy Mosque in Makkah, Al - Jazirah, said King Khaled has comprehensively diagnosed the real causes that threaten the centers of Islam and the followers of the Huly Prophet Muham-

"It was a timely warning from King Khaled to Muslims all over the world that the position of most Muslims today reflected the dangerous affliction of a preoccupation with transient materialism which has croded their spiritual values that are necessary for the strength of Muslims." the paper said.

Al-Jazirah added that it was gratifying to note that the King's message was delivered to pilgrims and Muslims all over the world at a time when they are in a dire need of guidance toward the right path for protecting the Muslim nation against the attacks of enemies who, having failed to achieve their evil aims by force of arms have resorted to a battle of minds to strike at Islamic values in an attempt to harm the Muslim nation.

The paper called on Muslims to let "the King's speech be the guiding light for the benefit of Muslims and Islamic states, as it has been the most honest call for following the path of truth, honesty and noble life necessary under the manile of Islam."

Dealing with the same subject, Al -Medina observed that King Khaled has deeply studied the ills befalling the Muslim nation and has honesty tried to unveil the dangerous waves of materialism that are eroding the spiritual values of the Muslims and in turn are greatly

"It is an eye-opener for Muslims, when King Khaled regretted the painful discovery of some people among Muslims who collaborate with the campaigns of enemies by following their destructive thoughts and beliefs which have become a danger to the minds of the rising young generation of Muslims," the paper said.

Okaz commended the comprehensive diagnosis and remedies enshrined in King Kbaled's speech and hoped strict adherence to his message could restore to the Islamic nation its strength and respectable position in the international arena.

"King Khaled's treatment of curing the ills of the Muslims was contained in his honest message to the Islamic nanon to strictly adhere to the Holy Ouran and Sunnah of the Prophet Muhammad (peace be upon him)." the paper said. It hailed Khaled's call for active Islamic solidarity and unity through collective work for the welfare and prosperity of the Islamic nation and for confrontation successfully the challenges of the enemies

. Al -Riyadh said the speech delivered by the servant of the two holy mosques has called on the Muslims to bear great responsibilities toward the Islamic faith and the prosperity of the Islamic nation.

The paper said King Khaled has provided a deep insight into the real nature of the great Islamic faith and has successfully pinpointed the evils cropping up in the Islamic nation.

"The Muslim nation is thankful to King Khaled for bearing the responsibility of sincerely helping and providing the Kingdom's moral, political and financial support to the Islamic, Arab. Palestinian and Afghan Musfim causes and issues," Al Riyadh wrote. - (SPA)

WASHINGTON - Scientists can now create tiny micro-organisms that consider oil a delicacy and gobble up components of petroleum when spilled into the sea. This useful technology is part of the thriving new indus-try of genetic engineering which exploits living organisms for the manufacture of useful

For the United States, oil pollution is a serious environmental disaster. According to reports from the United States Coast Guard. a total of 10,490 oil spills occurred in U.S. waters in 1979 to 1980, spilling 10,500,000 gallons of oil. An additional 9.600,000 gallons have been dumped into the water from the 9,050 oil spills recorded in 1981.

Standard procedure for the U.S. Coast Guard to clean up oil spills is the use of mechanical booms and skimmers that work to suck the oil out of the water, said Licutenant Michael Mabunay of the Environmental Response Division of the Coast Guard.

When asked about the use of microorganisms to disperse and eat up the oil, Mabunay responded that the chemical method is still "in an active state of development." He said he is not yet convinced that the problem of what micro-organism do after completing their job of consuming the oil has been solved at this point.

Environmental interest groups like the Friends of the Earth in Washington also expressed doubt about this method and questioned what would happen if the microorganism managed to get into the oil fields.

Nonetheless, private production and application of micro-organisms are underway and have experienced successful results.

This has led the U.S. Environmental Pro-safeguarding the environment against industrial abuse. In approve several genetically engineered products designed specifically to clean up oil pollution. An EPA representative explained that certain micro-organisms were accepted as safe because they eventually break down into a harmless state of hydrogen carbon and water after consuming the petroleum.

"We help nature along," said microhiologist Dr. Kennetb Zikopoulos of the Polybac Corporation, a genetic engineering firm in Pennsylvania. The principle behind applying genetically engineered micro-organisms to clean up oil, he said, is to make nature's cleaning process "more efficient and versatile."

"For example," he said, "oil spilled in soil along the coast would eventually oxidize and disappear, but this would take years, If we apply similar micro-organisms that degrade the oil naturally to the soil, the degradation of the oil would be more rapid."

The Polybae Corporation has been involved in cleaning up oil spills for the past to years, and Zikopoulos said there have been no hazardous claims against Polyhae. He said their genetic engineered products bave helped clean up some major oil spills in the North Sea and are currently working on cleaning up an oily storage lagoon in Louisiana.

Micro-organisms are microscopic animals and vegetables that thrive everywhere. They are bacteria, yeasts, algae, and molds that, by definition, cannot be seen by the naked eye.

The first steps toward controlling and improving microhiological processes were taken only a little more than 100 years ago, when bacteria and fungi that made desired commodities, like medicinal drugs, were isolated and grown in pure cultures. Later it became possible to select strains particularly

By Ayseli Usluata

RIYADH -- When one thinks of an office, a place where one works, the pictures one imagines have nothing to do with the warm atmosphere of a home. After visiting the "Women's Banking Center" of the Saudi American Bank in Rivadh, I was surprised to see how pleasant a working place could be. Here, while your business is being attended to, you can feel relaxed with the feeling of being at home. The Saudi American Bank with its training center for the staff offers good job opportunities to young women, and with the well-trained personnel gives the customer the kind of service one has come to expect at some of the best hanks in the West.

Since the time money started playing a vital role in the modern world, banks have become an indispensable part of our lives. Knowing that Saudi Arabia is a safe country to keep one's money at home or to carry it with oneself. I had never thought of finding a bank until the time came for some currency transfer. Had I known the friendly and efficient atmosphere of the "Women's Banking Center". I would have gone there earlier. On the third floor of the Saudi Arabian Bank (next to the Dental School of Riyadh Universily), away from the noise and the crowd, while sitting comfortably in an arm-chair and the nicely-furnished cool flat, it is easy to forget all about money and business, and feel at home with the friendly service. The young lady manager can easily surprise anyone since the typical image of a manager is almost always a somewhat older person. However, when we started chatting in the room separated from the rest with glass windows, the sound knowledge and under-

After the hard work in training she came hack and in March 1981, she was appointed as a mangager, and taking over this position she became the second manager of the Women's Banking Center.

The staff employed now gets training at the bank's own training center. The duration of the training time depends on the background of each employee. The training courses are given according to the specialities of the Employees, However, Mrs. Aziz says this is not a once-in-a-while-training; it is a continous training. When there is need for further knowledge on the subject or the speciality. the person is sent to the training center again to obtain more information, for there is always something new to learn; or sometimes they are sent to get trained in another job speciality in banking so that they can carry out the job of their colleagues when they are In that way the service is provided for the customers uninterruptedly without being affected by the absenteism.

Twelve persons are working at the Women's Banking Center at present. Two of them are Saudi Arabian women, and the rest are either Egyptians or Lebanese. They are all competent in their jobs, and all well-trained. They all speak both Arabic and English. Mrs. Aziz, Salwa (a Saudi woman who got her university education in London), and the secretary know French, English and Arabic. The personnel work on two sbifts, the morning shift is from 8 to 12:30 and the evening shift is from 5 to 7. The evening shift is especially ideal for mothers, who take care of their children in the morning and then leave them to the father's care and go on to work not worrying about them.

Saudi ladies who are looking for new fields in which to work, are eager to find jobs in the banking husiness. After nursing, teaching, social work, and journalism, now they will show their talent in the banking business. This will also be helpful in providing further work-power with the fast growing Saudi economy. Mrs. Aziz says there are a lot of applicants from the Saudi Arabian women, whose application-forms are waiting to be evaluated. She says that after SAMA - the Saudi Arabia Monetary Agency - has decided that the banks could have special branches for women, the hanks that applied opened women's sections. The Saudi American Bank, says Mrs. Aziz, is getting good response from the public.

Wives and husbands can have joint accounts and since everything is computerized, each party can deposit or withdraw money easily when necessary. Those who open savings accounts get dividends twice a vear. You can do your dealings by telephone if you have been a customer for a long time and the manager knows you. Thus, the Women's Banking Center has established itself with the services it is offering; both the working staff and the customers are happy with the current arrangement.

Astronomers find 'enormous void' is contrary to accepted theory

By Lee Dembart

LOS ANGELES (LAT) - Astronomers have stumbled across an immense region of the universe that apparently has nothing in it, a discovery that undermines current theories of how the universe was formed and how it behaves.

The enormous void is about 300 million ight years in diameter, an area that includes about I percent of the observable universe. It is big enough to encompass 2,000 galaxies the size of the Milky Way. A light year is the distance light travels in a year, about 6 trillion

What makes the discovery so startling is that current cosmology assumes that the universe is more homogeneous. There are empty areas, but none nearly so large and none nearly so empty. Whether the latest finding will force a revision of theories or will be accommodated and repaired awaits further study of what has been found.

The discovery of the vast empty region was reported in the current issue of Astrophysical lournal letters by four astronomers, including Stephen A. Shectman of the Mount Wilson Ohservatory near Pasadena, Calif.

No one had ever noticed the void before because there are galaxies in front of it and galaxies behind it. The earth-based observer gets a two-dimensional view of the nighttime

But Shectman and his colleagues undertook a three-dimensional mapping of the universe

CURRENT THEORY: This photo shows the current concept of stellar space with orderly arrangement of stars and no voids. hy studying the red shift in light coming from distant stars.

In the expanding universe, the further away an object is, the faster it is moving away and the more light from it shifts toward the found a gap in red shifts, meaning a gap in speeds and in distances.

"It is as if you go to Dogger Stadium and look at the crowd," said one of the researches, Paul L. Schechter of the Kitt Peak National Observatory near Tucson, Ariz At first the crowd looks perfectly normal. Then you ask people's ages and you find there is no one there between 25 and 29. There's a gap there."

Current theories hold that in the beginning of the universe, matter was fairly uniformly distributed throughout. However, some areas were slightly more dense than the average and some areas were slightly less dense. The regions that were slightly more dense had a higher self gravity, so they did not expand as fast as the rest of the universe and became still more dense. The slightly less dense regions expanded faster and still less By this theory, the most-dense regions now are about three times as dense as the rest of the universe, and the least dense regions about one-third as dense as the average. But the void whose discovery has just been reported is about one-tenth or less dense as the rest of the universe, a finding that cannot be accommodated by the present theory.

"It may be that because it was somewhat underdense, the way in which matter chose to organize itself into galaxies was changed," Schechter said. "It may be that there are a large number of fainter galaxies there. which remain unseen.

Or it may be, as another guess would have it. that enormous detonations occurred in the early universe that swept out whole cavities.

Simple aircraft repair developed

LONDON - Australian engineers have discovered such a unique and simple method of repairing cracked or broken airplane parts, that aircraft are put back into service almost immediately. Using carbon or boron fibers set in a resin, technicians at the Aeronautical Research Laboratories in Melbourne, Victoria, can repair damaged aircraft components. And because the procedure is so effective and simple, the plane is out of service for only a very short time.

Unlike conventional repair methods such as replacing parts, a lengthy and costly procedure, or attaching a reinforcing plate with rivets which can lurther weaken the components — the Australian method involves attaching the fiberreinforced plastic with glue. This allows stress to be transmitted from the component to the patch, and makes the repair fatigue resistent, strong and stiff. The materials can also be molded into complex shapes for intricate repairs.

Small's late goal gives England a point

SYDNEY, Oct. 5 (AFP) — A goal 11 minutes from time by Mike Small of Luton Town gave England a deserved 1-1 draw against Argentina in the World Youth Football Championships here Mooday and all but ended the holders' hopes of reaching the quarterfinals stages.

The Argentinians, 1-2 losers to Australia in Saturday's opening play, had taken the lead after 57 minutes when a snap-shot hy Urruti deflected off an English defender and caught Aston Villa goalkeeper Mark Kendall on the wrong foot.

But, as against the Australians, Argentina tired over the last 15 minutes allowing Small to hit the all-important equalizer.

In the only other game Monday, the three other groups playing their second matches Tuesday, hosts Australia were held to a 3-3 draw by an enterprising Cameroun side.

Mets league manager axed

McKay's home run helps A's to victory

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (SPA) — The New York Mets won a game but lost a manager Sunday as Joe Torre was fired along with his entire coaching staff on the regular season's final day.

In the midst of New York's 2-1 victory over the Montreal Expos, Mets general manager Frank Cashen fired Torre and his staff and said he was still considering a replacement. Torre was the seventh league manager to be uxed this season.

Meanwhile. Dave McKay hit a tiebreaking home run in the seventh inning as the Onkland A's defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-3. The loss sent the Royals to Cleveland Mnnday for a makeup doubleheader to determine whether one or two contests will be played in Kansas Ciyt in the five-game west mini-series.

The Mets scored their winning run in the eighth as Mike Howard drew a walk, stole second and raced home on Ron Gardenhire's single. Pete Falcone, 5-3, scattered eight hits, posted eight strikeouts and did not allow a walk while Bill Gullickson was the loser.

The Phillies, meanwhile, closed out their regular engagements with a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs as Lonnie Smith extended his hitting streak to 2 games and scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Gary Woods singled home the tie-breaking run in the ninth inning as the Houston Astros beat the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-3 in a preview of the NL West playoffs.

European boxing champ retires

LONDON, Oct. 5 (AFP) - John L. Gardner. Britain's European heavyweight champion, has announced his retirement from professional boxing Saturday Gardner, who says he is quitting while he is in front, admitted in the Sunday Press that he was only really fit for three of his 35 professional fights.

Gardner also revealed that the biggest problem of his life were caused not by boxing. hut by gambling. He leaves the scene as the acknowledged best in Europe. He is also undefended as British champion when he gave that title up last year to concentrate on Europe and, hopefully, winning the world heavyweight championship.

His decision means he will no longer defend his title against Luwen Rodrigues of France in Paris on October 15.

each lost Sunday. Kirk Gibson's RBI single drove in the winning run as the Detroit Tigers snatched a 3-2 victory over the Brewers. Eddie Murray hit a two-run homer to lead the Baltimore Orioles over the Yankees 5-2.

In other AL action. Don Baylor cracked four hits, drove in two runs and scored another to lead California past Texas 9-2. Dwight Evans scored three times as Boston beat Cleveland 6-2.

Sixth-ining home runs by Herry Bulling and Tom Paciorek led Seattle over Toronto 2-0. Jerry Hairston capped a four-run rally with two out in the ninth with a game-winning single and also belted a grand slam homer as Chicago beat Minnesota 13-12.

Mears streaks to glory

WATKINS GLEN, New York, Oct. 5 (AP) - Rick Mears inherited the lead just four laps from the end and flew to his fifth Indy car victory of the season and second in a row, winning the chaotic Watkins Glen 200 Sunday after unheralded Rocky Moran ran out of fuel while apparently heading toward Moran appeared a cinch to win in his first Indy car start. However, the car suddenly lost power and pulled off the course halfway through the 57th of 60 laps on the treacherous 3.377-mile (5.434 km) Watkins Glen.

That left Mears more than a lap ahead of second-place Johnny Rutherford and thirdplace Bill Alsup. Boh Lazier was listed fourth, two laps down and Steve Chassey fifth, four laps behind.

Mears had cut Moran's lead to less than one second with nine laps remaining, hut the leader had rehuilt the margin to more than four seconds before he ran out of fuel.

Moran, was in the car fielded by Dan Gurney because regular driver Geoff Brabham was not available. He finished third here in the Can-Am race.

Moran wound up sixth and officials announced after the race that he had been penalized one lap for starting out of his pit area after the fuel spill with the hose still attached to the car. Gurney apparently was aware of the possibility of a penalty before Moran went out of the race, but there was no word whether Moran knew that he might lose

He winner averaged 108.284 mph (174,261 kph) and picked up first-place money of $17,965." He (Moran) got unlucky and I got lucky," Mears said. "It's been going like this most of the year for us.

AL Unser jumped past pole-sitter Mario Andretti at the start of the race, but Andretti asserted his dominance quickly, moving past Unser like a streak on the second lap.and pulling steadily away.

Meanwhile, Bohhy Unser, who started 15th in his hackup car after the Penske-Cosworth he qualified with was disqualified by technical inspectors for being too long. charged quickly through the traffic.

The elder Unser, a two-time winner of the Indianapowis 500 and the man who was stripped of an Indy victory this year because of illegal passing, moved all the way up to second place after 10 laps.

By that time, Andretti had huilt a lead of nearly 19 seconds over the second-place car. Andretti was among the last of the leaders to make his first pit stop. He came in after lap 19, took on fuel and came out still holding a 26.3 second lead over Unser.

Mears, Unser's teammate and a secondrow started, inherited second place on lap 23 when Unser's car began to smoke and pulled off the course. Mears, however, was more than 40 seconds behind.

Moments later, Andretti's Cosworth-Wildcat pulled off the track with a broken gearbox, giving Mears the lead, with AL Unser right behind.

Argentina, U.S. make clean sweep

PORTLAND, Oregon, Oct. 5 (AP) - The United States and Argentina both completed a 5-0 thrashing of Australia and Britain . respectively Sunday.

In Buenos Aires, Argentina, who made sure of victory by taking an unbeatable 3-0 lead after the doubles Saturday won the reverse singles Sunday when Jose-Luis Clerc beat Buster Mottram 7-5, 6-4 and Guillermo Vilas defeated Richard Lewis 6-0, 6-2. The British failed to win a set in the entire match.

In Portland, John McEnore the dominant player in the U.S. triumph, downed the top Australian player Peter McNamara 9-7, 6-0 and Roscoe Tanner, who defeated McNamara in five sets on Friday, rallied to beat Mark Edmondson 3-6, 6-2, 6-3 in Sunday's final Tanner, the No. 8 player in world rankings who will turn 30 years old later this month, fell behind early when Edmondson broke his service in the fourth game of the first set. But the hard-serving American came back to win with the help of several mistakes by Edmondson. Tanner broke the Australian's serve in the sixth game of the final two sets.

Australian team officials were unsure when the last sweep of an Aussie team had occurred, but they said it may have been thet 1946 loss to the Americans. Australia has swept the United States three times since Sunday's matches completed the first U.S. sweep since the Americans defeated Italy 5-0 in the 1979 finals.

McEnroe said he was looking forward to facing Argentina. "I would think it should be a great match," McEnroe said. "With (Jose Luis) Clerc and (Guillermo) Villas in the top 10 it should be very tough," he said. On paper, it should be our toughest match yet, but I think we can win every one of them if we play well," said McEnroe, who added that he would play in the Davis Cup as long as be is

Kuwait denies oil output, price cut

KUWAIT, Oct. 5 (Agencies) - Kuwait Monday denied it was reducing oil output and cutling its official rate.

Kuwait's oil minister Monday denied reports K uwait had reduced its oil production by 200,000 barrels per day from 800,000 to 600,000 harrels per day. "Kuwait has not reduced its production below 800,000 barrels," the minister, Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al-Sabah added in a statement.

Sheikh Ali also stated the easier credit terms offered to Kuwait's oil customers last month "are merely additional facilities granted to customes huving Kuwaiti oil."

But he admitted that "these facilities represented a reduction of more than one dollar on the surcharge added to the official prices of Kuwaiti oil.

"This reduction would not affect the original official price of Kuwait oil of $35.50 per barrel," he added. Kuwait informed its customers last week it was extending its credit temts by 60 days, from 30 to 90 days.

The authoritative oil bulletin Middle East Economic Survey (MEES), said last week that Kuwait had effectively cut its oil price by up to $1.10 a barrel by offering customers easier credit terms. K uwait's official output ceiling is 1.25 million bpd, but Gulf oil anelysts said customer resistance to its prices and a fire at a major refinery had depressed output to about 600,000 hpd temporarily in August.

Two U.S. banks cut prime to 19%

NEW YORK, Oct. 5 (AP) - Two major New York banks --- Chase Manhattan Bank and Morgan Guaranty Trsut Co. - reduced their prime lending rate Monday from 19.5 to 19 percent, matching a move that began a Lasi Monday, Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust Co., the seventhlargest U.S. commercial bank, was first to adopt a 19 percent prime rate, the lowest level since early May. Chase Manhattan, the nation's third-largest bank, and fifthranked Morgan Guaranty became the first major banks to follow that move.

The prime rate is the base banks use to compute interest charges on loans to their most credit worthy corporate customers. Some very short-term loans to major customers are made at rates below the prime rate. The prime rate reached a record-high 21.5 percent in December, 1980,

Sequel to dollar surge

Europe pays $11 more for oil

LONDON, Oct. 5 (R) --- European importers are paying the equivalent of up to $11 a barrel more for their oil than they were in January because of the strength of the U.S. dollar since then, the Petroleum Intelligence Weekly (PIW) said Monday.

The New York oil newsletter, which is also distributed in London, said the price of oil in dollars, the oil industry's working currency, had declined since January - the weighted average is now between $33 and $34 a harrel (42 U.S. gallons) from just over $35 at the start of the year.

Bul PIW said import costs in terms of local currencies had soared. "Europeans now pay the per-barrel equivalent of $5 to $11 extra." il calculated.

Meanwhile, a barrel of crude was worth appreciably more to members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), when the proceeds were spent in Europe and Japan, because of the high value of the dollar, buoyed oo world currency markets by high U.S. interest rates. The PIW also said there were rumors in oil circles that an OPEC deal reunifying oil prices was imminent "with some saying it could come as early as this month."

OPEC prices are at present split with the higgest exporter, Saudi Arabia, charging $32 a harrel and most of the other 12 members charging between:34 and $40. OPEC sources say middle-of-the-roaders like Kuwait and Indonesia have been trying for a compromise in which the Saudi Arabians would swap a small increase in return for reductions by those at the top of the scale, including price "hawks" Algeria and Libya.

A unified price would give all the exporters a more or less equal chance fighting for sales in the present world glut. The PIW said that, despite the glut. OPEC members put no major price concessions on the table at the start of the final quarter and buyers, emboldened by the glut, let many contracts expire

Sept. 30.
Some buyers turned temporarily to the spot market, where oil not under long-term contract is traded, and spot prices strengthened. PIW said spot Saudi Arabian light and Nigerian crudes were quoted 10 U.S. cents above contract prices.

Soviet minister sacked for neglect

MOSCOW, Oct. 5 (R) - A Soviet deputy oil minister has been sacked for his part in a major scandal in which tons of imported equipment intended to boost oil production was left to rust and millions of roubles were squandered.

Negligeoce by E. Khalimov, one of the several deputy oil industry ministers, had cost the coutry millions of tons of oil, the newspaper Socialist Industry said Sunday.

The newspaper said Khalimov had neglected to put into operation new government-ordered methods to improve oil production levels by use of chemicals and imported equipment. Instead, between 1976 and 1981 he invented fictitious date to deceive his superiors into believing the government's orders were being carried out. Investigators discovered the scandal when thousands of barrels of imported chemicals were found lying oeglected in railway sidings. Specially-imported equipment earmarked for use in Siberian and Kazakhstan oil fields was discovered in a similar state, rusting and damaged, the newspaper said.

A total of 36 million roubles had been lost through neglected equipment and 40,000 tons of chemicals hed been wasted. it added. Khalimov's negligeoce meant the country had lost millions of tons of oil and huge sums of money had beeo squandered, il said. The newspeper suggested that as well as being sacked Khalimov might be

Tanzania scraps Greek fishing deal

DAR-ES-SAIAM. Oct. 5 (AP) - The government has nullified a commercial fishing contract between a private Greek firm and the state-run Tanzania Fisheries corp. (TAFICO) because of irregularioes end suspected corruption, the government-owned Sunday News reported.

It said the ministry of natural resources and tourism has cancelled the joint venture with the Atlantic Fishing Co. (AFC) of Athens because the contract had not been fully scrutinized and approved by the proper authorities and because it was weighted in favor of the Greek firm.

The government's daily news alleged last July in a three-part investigative report that Tanzania could bave lost up to 200 million shillings ($25 million) in foreign exchange through the deal.

The papers noted irregularities in the conincluding low pricing of prawns.

Iraq oil supply assured -- Imelda

MANILA. Oct. 5 (R) - Philippine Human Settlement Minister Imelda Marcos said Monday that Iraq had promised to maintain oil supplies to the Philippines and give it priority in development contracts.

Mrs. Marcos, wife of President Ferdinand Marcos, was speaking to reporters after returning from a four-day visit to Iraq. where she signed a trade agreement providing for more favored nation treatment between the two countries.

"A joint Philippine-Iragi commission will be set up to meet yearly and monitor or review the progress of trade between the two countries." she said. The Philippines receives about 15 percent of its oil from Iraq. which hires thousands of Filipinos for construction

Indian garment exports to Russia hit $50m

NEW DELHI, Oct. 5 (AP) - Political and economic turmoil in Poland has prompted the Soviet Union to turn to India for more imports of ready-made garments, a top Indian official said Sundey.

Krishnan Nair, cheirman of the government's Apparels Export Promodon Council (AEPC), told a reporter that the Russians had purchased Indian garmenis worth 450 millioo rupees ($50 million in the first six months of 1981 and the imports were likely to touch 1 billion rupees (S112 million) before the year-end.

France plans to freeze prices of vital items

PARIS. Oct. 5 (AP) - Finance Minister Jacques Delors said Monday the government plans to freeze the prices of services and certain products and block profits margins of importers in an effort to reduce inflation from an annual rate of about 14 percent to 10

The measure, which follows a decision Sunday by the Common Market's council of finance ministers to devalue the franc and the Italian lire by 3 percent and revalue the West German mark and the Dutch guilder by 5.5 percent, will be announced formally after Wednesday's regular cabinet meeting Delors said at a news conference.

Delors said that each percentage point by which inflation is reduced saves 50,000 jobs. He said prices of services will be frozen at their level of Oct. 3 for a six-month period. Should any increases be recorded during the period, the government will apply a special tax. he said.

If an agreement for price moderation can be arranged with professional groups, the price freeze on services could be lifted as from Jan. 1. Delors said. Delors said the freeze will affect the prices of certain "sensitive" products, such as bread, milk, butter, margarine and other necessary consumer items, through the end of the year.

While stressing that the government would maintain its policy of price freedom and encouraging competition, the finance minister said the government also intended to freeze the profit margins of importers et their Oct. 3 level for three months.

Currency realigantent

EEC urges inflation control BRUSSELS, Oct. 5 (AP) - The European Economic Community's top financial officer Monday praised a decision to change values of four EEC currencies, but warned that followup measures to stem inflation were needed. 'We will have to back it up with economic and policy decisions," EEC Finance Commissioner François-Xevier Ortoli told a news conference.

"We also have to keep a close check on budgetary deficits," Ortoli added, When asked if he was referring to France, where a new budget envisions a deficit of 60 billion francs ($10 billion), Ortoli smiled and said, The need is to fight against inflation. How everybody does that is up to them."

In the most radical shift of currencies in the 30-month history of the European monetary system, finance ministers decided Sunday to devalue the French franc and Italian lira and upvalue the West German mark and Dutch guilder 5.5 percent.

In the most radical shift of currencies in the 30-month history of the European monetary system, finance ministers decided Sunday to devalue the French franc and Italian lira and upvalue the West German mark and Dutch guilder 5.5 percent.

Ortoli said the "realism and sound" realignment was necessary to help improve French and Italian international trade and help West Germany and the Netherlands cut

"I hope the decision will lead to a drop in interest rates." he added. "What happened yesterday was sound manegement." He called for greater cooperation with U.S. authorities to keep interest rates down and reduce other disruptions caused by divergent -: economic policies in the United States and European countries.

Belgian monetary expert Jacques Van Ypersele echoed Ortoli's view that the realignment of the EMS could lead to reduced interest rates in Europe. Van Ypersele, chief adviser to the Belgian finance minister, told a radio interviewer the realignment "is a reinforcement of the EMS. It's important to live in a zone of reletive developing countries, particularly Argentina. The report said, however, that continuing bad weather in the Soviet Union "seems likely to result in another poor crop" for thet country for the third consecutive year.

Dry weather also might have an edverse impact on the Indian coarse grain crop, it said. The report reaffirmed that world cereal production was expected to recover this year, with total output ranging from 1,495 to 1,535 million tons, compared with 1.435 million tons in 1980 and the previous record of 1,470 million tons in 1979.

Iranian Arabs declare revolt

Baghdad Bureau

BAGHDAD. Oct. 5 - A new front claiming to represent 3.5 million Iranian Arabs Monday declared armed struggle for the independence of Al Ahwaz region from Iran. Sayid Hadi, the leader of the Arah Front for the Liberation of Ahwaz told a press conference that the regime of Khomeini" is exercising more cruel methods than the "tyrant" Shah against the Ahwaz people.

'Khomeini, whom we supported to topple the Shah, has disappointed our people as he continued oppressive measures which we have suffered at the hands of the Shah," Hadi Australian Prime Minister Malcokm Fraser to discuss southern Africa, one of the key issues before the 42 delegations.

Nigeria, Kenya. Britain, Canada. Zimbabwe, Jamaica, Zambia. Grenada, Lesotho, Sierra Leone and Australia took part in what Secretary-General Shridath (Sonny) Ramphal called wide-ranging, powerful and reflective talks.

Pretoria's actions continue to threaten the stability of southern Africa, Ramphal said. Tension was building and the Commonwealth's patience was wearing thin, he said. "We are all committed to bringing Namibia to speedy independence and tn the dismantling of apartheid," Ramphal said.

There was a convergence of views between two representarives of the so-called contact group which is trying to negotiate with Pretoria and those from three front-line states of southern Africa, he said, referring to Canada and Britain in the five-nation contact group and Lesotho, Zimbabwe and Zambia among the front-liners. Shagari's major address Monday concentrated almost eotirely on southern Africa.

He noted that of the seven independent states sharing common frontiers with South Africa, five are Commonwealth members, With Zimbabwe independent and no looger an issue, the unfinished business in southern Africa remains "the elimination of the racist policy of apartheid of South Africa and the question of the independence of Namihia."

"Both issues must be of serious concern to the Commonwealth. One involves a former British colony and the other a former British-mandated territory." Shagari said the world was "indignant over the wanton destruction of life and property which unprovoked attacks by South Africa against Angola have caused...

"Regrettably, South Africa has felt encouraged by the new United States administration's attempt to link the so-called issue of Cuban troops in Angola with the question of the independence of Namibia. Needless to say that this American position is as unjust as it is incomprehensible.

"The question of Namibia's independence long pre-dated American concern over Cuban forces in Africa, even if the Americans choose to ignore the reasons for the Cuban presence in Angola." Shagari said his understanding is that the Cubans are there only to help defend Angola against South African attacks. "South Africa is on a collision course with Africa, with the cotire international community," the Nigerian president said.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said it would be unrealistic of South Africa to think that the United States would be conciliatory with the Pretoria government on independence for Southwest Africa.

She said the United States shared the views of the other members of the contact group that any settlement for the territory bad to be! on the basis of U.N. resolution 435.

Thatcher cautions Trudeau

MELBOURNE, Oct. 5 (R) - British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau Monday she would submit his constituunnal reform package to the British Parli-ament but warned him it faced growing opposition in London. The two prime ministers, attending a Commonwealth summit bere, met for 25 minutes to discuss Trudeau's proposals.

A statement issued after the meeting said Mrs. Thatcher had agreed to submit the reform package to the House of Commons once it had been approved by the Canadian Parliament. Trudeau said last week he would submit the plan to the Canadian Parliament shortly after it reconvenes nn Oct. 14. The new session of the British Parliament opens on Nov. 4.

The proposed changes would end the need for any amendments to the Canadian constitution to be approved by the British Parliament, which has been the case since the country became independent in 1867. The package also includes a new hill of rights and a formula for amending the constitution once that power passes from

Solidarity rebuffed

Polish price hikes stay

GDANSK, Poland, Oct. 5 (Agencies) -The Polish government Monday defied Solidarity union demands and said it will go ahead with a 100 percent increase in cigarette prices despite union anger.
But it appeared that there were no cigarettes to buy Monday, when the price hike was scheduled to go into effect, and a kiosk sales-woman here said she would not have any tobacco until Tuesday.

Solidarity union chief Lech Walesa Sunday night demanded in a virtual ultimatum an immediate suspension of the cigarette price hikes which raise the price of the cheapest brand to 40 cents a pack, and of more expensive brands to $1.80.

During a stormy session at the union's first national congress Sunday, many delegates said their rank-and-file members were prepared to strike over the price hikes, and Walesa told government ministers trying to explain the increase they had no choice.

Delegates laughed at Minister of Finance Marian Krzak and Price Commission Chairman Zygmunt Krasinski during their arrempts to explain the price hike.

"The suspension of the price increases of cigarettes is unjustified," a government communique carried by the Polish news agency PAP said.

One of the positive factors of which we can be proud in the political developments witour region, was the esta of the Gulf Cooperation Council. This development is consistent and in harmony with the charters and resolutions of the Organization of Islamic Conference and the League of Arab States. It is also consistent with the Charter of the United Nations and the resolutions of the movement of nonaligned countries. It, in fact, represents a strengthening and consecration of cooperation and inter-action between the member states of the council.

At the same time, it does not constitute an alliance against anyone. It is an expression of the free will of these countries and of cooperation among them, in full and nutual awareness of their national interests, free of any outside influence. The aforesaid council will be a positive factor for stability in the region. and will play an effective role in helping to eliminate foreign interference, particularly in matters which are considered within the exclusive competence of the Gulf states.

The membership of the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), its positive efforts in international economic bodies, and its effective role in international efforts are aimed at strengthening of international economic cooperation and finding solutions for all the problems encountered. This has not only led to its adoption of responsible economic policies, but also to the establishment of a pragmatic and realistic perspective with respect to the international economic situation, its problems, and the solutions proposed for overcoming these problems.

A glance at this economic situation indicates that there is a reality which requires no definition, namely, that the world is divided into developing countries suffering from starvation, destitution and lack of resources, as well as a low standard of living, and industrialized countries enjoying affluence, abundance, and a high standard of living. This situation constitutes a disequilibrium recognized by everyone. The whole world, including the industrialized countries, acknowledges this disequilibrium. Yet, it continues to lack the political will to eradicate it. The only solution for this disequilibrium requires that real wealth not be limited to specific states. It should be transferred and directed from the industrialized to the developing couotries.

The discussion by the General Assembly of economic matters and interoational economic cooperation for development is of great importance because these matters bave a considerable impact on international peace and security and on the reduction of international tension. While economic stagnation continues at the international level, the cost of imports by the developing countries of food products and capital and consumer goods increases with a concurrent reductioo in the demand for their basic products. Protective trade measures in the markets of the industrialized countries have been increasing, thus diminishing the exports of the developing countries to these markets. This results in a deterioration of trade conditions and an increase in the trade balance deficits. These problems are compounded by the rise in the costs of loans and loan services, fluctuations in the rates of exchange, and a substantial decline in the official development assistance from the industrialized countries.

This gloomy picture of the conditions of a large number of developing countries requires an acceleration in launching a new effort of comprehensive economic negotiations, aimed at the coordination of international economic performance, and an increase in the effectiveness of international cooperation for development. It is regrerable, Mr. President, that the efforts of the General Assembly to launch the global economic negotiations should be impeded on account of differences over some procedural matters. The nature of the subjects tabled for discussinn does not permit delay or postponement. They must be given the priority and care which they deserve. In this regard, the Kingdom of Saudi Arahia wishes to commend the initiative of his excellency, Mr. Jose Lopez Portilln, the president of Mexico and his Excellency, Mr. Bruno Kreisky, the chancellor of Austria, in calling for a limited summit to discuss problems of international cooperation for development. We hope that this conference will succeed in restoring mutual confidence and strengthening common understanding between the participat-ing developing and developed states.

The policy of apartheid which South Africa continues to practice is detestable and inhumane and is based on the oppression of man by man. There is no longer a place for such a policy in our present age. The days of imperialism and enslavement are gone forever. The continuation of the policy of apartheid by the present regime in South Africa is the reason for its refusal to withdraw from Nambia and to deny its people the right to self-determination, despite the repeated resolutions of the General Assembly and the Security Council. The Kingdom of Saudi Arahia is proud to be a member of the Organization of the Islamic Conference. Islam is its religion: The Holy Ouran is its constitution and guiding light. Islam is a religion that calls for freedom and stands against aggression, exploitation and oppression. It opposes all forms of hackwardness and encourages the freedom of thought. It is capable of absorbing the accomplishments of our age. The hasic nature of the Organization of the Islamic Conference meets these hopes and aspirations.

Early this year, the Third Islamic Summit Conference convened in the holy city of Makkah. That great and historic meeting was a remarkable occasion during which the leaders of Islamic countries adapted resolutions and recommendations of great importance and issued the historic declaration of Makkah. The upshot of all this is that the Islamic gathering is one for good and not for evil, for strength in right and not strength for oppression: a gathering that does not strive to create areas of influence at the expense of others but to achieve independence for all countries.

The Islamic states do not aspire to create a bloc opposed to current military alliances. They strive to eliminate the foundation of alliances for death and destruction. The Islamic countries support disarmament and oppose the arms race. They oppose the proliferation of ouclear weapons in the world and favor their reduction and elimination.

The Organization of the Islamic Coofereoce has exerted a considerable effort to maintain the Arab and Islamic character of Jerusalem, its beritage and civilization, particularly when the hlind arrogance of Israel has led it to proclaim Jerusalem as the "eternal capital' of which its racist-entity, thereby challenging the world conscience, Islamic consensus and international legality.

The Organization of the Islamic Conference was able to demonstrate to the whole world the dangerous dimensions of the flagrant Soviet invasion and occupation of Afghanistan. It condemned the Soviet Union and called for a complete, unconditional withdrawal of military forces from Afghanistan, and the nonrecognition of, or cooperation with the present regime. We therefore call upon all the other nations of the world to support the organizatioo's position on this matter hy condemning and denouncing the action of the Soviet Union. Furthermore, the Organization of the Islamic Conference called on all nations to support the people of Afghanistan in the elimination of all forms of oppression, subjugation and occupation so that these people may regain their freedom and independence, and be able to exercise their sovereign right over their land. This will not be possible without the complete and unconditional withdrawal of Soviet military forces from Afghanistan. The support that the Soviet Union continues to give to the rights of the Arabs in Palestine does not justify its occupation of Afghanistan, nor does it justify the denial to the people of Afghanistan of their rights.

The continuation of the conflict between Iran and Iraq has created deep concern in our region and a strong desire for its termination. The Islamic countries have spared no effort in this regard through the Islamic Good-will Comminee created in the course of the Islamic Conference in the boly city of Makkah, which has among its members, nine heads of state, members of the Islamic Conference. While we strongly support these efforts and the supplementary endeavors by the nonaligned movement and the United Nations, we hope that such efforts would bear fruit.

At the same time, we deplore very strongly the recent aggression against the brotherly state of Kuwait which was aimed at certain economic installations. This represents an aggression against the sanctity and sovereignty of Kuwaiti airspace, undermines the security and stability of the region and violates international law and practice. A continuation of such aggression will lead the states of the Arab League to apply the Joint Arah

Defense Agreement. The membership of Saudi Arabia in the Arab League is oot merely a political or casual relationship. It is the reality of a common destiny ad civilization reflecting a common bistory, culture, and aspirations for a world enjoying stability, prosperity and progress. The League of Arab States in cooformity with the objectives of the United Nations and its charter has played important and constructive roles, aimed at strengthening the political, economic, social and cultural cooperation among its members. In its efforts to attain these ends, it was faced with a formidable obstacle that continues to prevent the establishmeot of peace and stability, not only in the Middle East region, but in the wbole world.

By that I mean Israeli aggression and bateful racist policy pursued by it. Wheo he refer to the Israeli eoemy, we do not solely bear in mind its aggressioo against a peaceful people in their own homeland, the unflawful acquisition of their lands and property, the fact that such aggressioo constitutes a violation of principles and supreme human values or that it amounts to a brazen defiance of the resolutions adopted by international bodies: We also perceive the aggression as being against high moral values and lofty buman principles. Ever since the forces of East and West combined to partitioo Palestine and establish the so-called state of Israel, that state decided to adopt expansion as its principle and aggression as its way of life.

The Jews who have emigrated to Palestine at the turn of the century and acquired in 1947 fifty-seven percent of the fertile lands of Palestine, have extended their economic domain to include the whole of Palestine in addition to other neighboring Arah territories. Since 1967, Israel has been creating settlements in the occupied Arab lands. which in 1981, reached a total of 32 settlements on the Golan Heights, 12 settlements in the Gaza Strip, and 18 settlements in northern Sinai and the outskirts of Rafah. These are in addition to 111 settlements on the West Bank. Israel has in fact, usurped 34.4 percent of the total area of the occupied West Bank, which was already reduced. Israel was established on and continues to thrive on aggression. Its history has been marked by policies of expansion, torture, and occupation which forms the hasis of its existence. In the course of one month only, Israel bas committed two criminal aggressions against two Arab capitals. The Security Council adopted a resolution condemning Israel for its aggression against the nuclear reactor in Iraq. No sooner had the ink of that resolution dried, when Israel committed a savage crime against areas crowded with civilians in Beirut, killing and wounding hundreds of people, including womeo, the aged, and children. Everytime, the excuses were the same. Israel allows itself to violate the air-space of a sovereign state and member of the United Nations, to occupy part of its land, kill its people and attack another Arah capital all this under the pretext that such actions are dictated by the necessity of defending its security. Israel claims, in an effort to deceive and mislead public opinion, that its security is threatened by the existence of the Iraqi nuclear reactor. It also claims that is aggression against Lebanon is to protect the Christians and sometimes to protect itself against the Palestinians in southern Lebanon. All these claims involve complete distortions of fact. On what basis could Israel consider the nuclear reactor a threat to its security when Irao had, in fact, established the reactor for peaceful purposes, signed the nooproliferation treaty and agreed to open its reactor for inspection by the IAEA? Since wheo was Israel concerned about the well-heing of the Christians in Lebanon when it bad itself killed and displaced the Christians of Palestine? Furthermore, the existence of the Palestinians in southern Lebanon is a direct result of the Zionist aggressioo against the Palestinians and their displacement.

His Royal Highness Prince Fahd Ben Abdul Aziz, crown prince and deputy prime minister, put forward certain principles which can be used in the formulation of such a resolutioo. These priociples were previously embodied in resolutions adopted by the Security Council and General Assembly.

They are: I- The withdrawal of Israel from all Arab lands occupied in 1967, including Arab

2- The removal of settlements established by Israel in Arab lands after 1967:

3- Security of the freedom of worship and religious rites for all religions in the hely

4- Confirmation of the right of the Palestinian people to return, and compensation for those who opt not to do so:

5-The West Bank and the Gaza Strip will be subject to a transitional period under the supervision of the United Nations for a period not exceeding few months: 6- The establishment of an independent

Palestinian state with Jerusalem as its capital: 7— Confirming the right of the countries of the region to live in peace:

8- The United Nations or some of its members shall guarantee the implementatioo of these principles.

His Royal Highness has stressed that the implementation of these principles depends on three conditions which must be fulfilled.

(1) Cessarion of the unlimited American support for Israel.

(2) Putting an end to Israeli arrogance. (3) Recognition that the Palestinian number is the main factor in the Middle East equation.

The United Nations has urged enough and condemned enough. Yet, an equitable and just solution is nowhere in sight. We ask ourselves whether there is any way other than proceeding from the consensus of condemnation to tangible implementation, in order to reach a settlemeot? This question is placed before the United Nations and the Security

The tangible procedure is embodied in the proposed resolution which should constitute the framework for a settlement, All the Arab countries desire peace and strive to its attainment. While they may disagree on positions concerning international efforts and initiatives, they do oot differ on the need for a just and comprehensive peace.

Our faith in the principles and objectives of the United Nations, wherein all nations of the world meet, is solid and becomes even stronger with the passage of time despite problems and crises that face the world. Because of our faith in this organization, we do not hesitate to come to it to discuss various problems and crises, and to cooperate with others in seeking solutions for the establishment of a world community characterized by stability, progress, peace, and security.

Good Morning By Jihad Al Khazen

الثلاثاء ٨ ذي الحجة ١٤٠١هـ

My new friend, a man of evident wisdom about, and experience in, the American scene (be's been working at one of the smaller Arah embassies in Washington for a few years), gave me an earnest lecture about the theme of "us and them." (He kept assuring me that the "them" here is official America only, that he has many friends here whom he would and could never possibly think of as "them.")

His main point was the following. Offi-cial America has convinced itself that It must "protect" us. And that's why we must now start worrying. Just look at the long list of countries they have "protected", and look at what happened as a result. Enemy attack is, in comparison to America'a" protection", safety itself. The problem with official America, be insisted, was its failure to mobilize the vast economic and military resources of the country properly, or bring them to bear effectively on any issue. Official America, he added, is an America of hunglers administration after administration walk by like so many Gerald Fords (as he tried to accomplish the feat while chewing

He told me to forget about the great and obvious disasters. Let the Cubas, the Vietnams, the Angola's go and take the lesser, supposedly more handable affairs. One of the most illustrative among these is perhaps that of the "technology gap", now sadly narrowing, with the Soviet Unioo. Time there was when the American felt sale no matter what the Soviets did, because they knew the other side could oever really perfect his technology. Great ICBM's the Russian have had for a while. But it was always assumed they will never get the knowbow for pinpoint accuracy: which is what you would oeed wheo it comes to trying to knock the other fellow's missiles out before they fly.

But now they bave it, and thanks purely to American technology - during the Nixon administration they were allowed to buy equipment to help them in this regard, "for peaceful purposes only", of course. But they adapted it, as anybody could have guessed they would, for their present fearful purpose. Hence the panic oow about a possible Russian "first strike."

Then there's the question of the jumbo jets pioneered by the Americans. The metals used were, of course, a closely guarded secret. There was oo way for the Russians to buy them; and it was equally isidie to optam them untol trial espiooage. So what did they do?

They simply asked to pay a friendly quite above board, visit — a lunch invitatioo included. There would be of course no question of cameras, hiddeo or otherwise. No question of awkward inquiries. Just to see an advanced technology plant in action, that's all. When the idea was accepted the Russians turned up for the appointment, dressed in the normal way, or so it appeared Except for their shoes, which were all rubber-soled; and very sticky rubber it was too. They walked around the factory, gave out the usual views on the need for more technological cooperation, presented their compliments and went home. And there, of course, the shoes were collected, and their soles separated and residues on the analyzed to within an inch of their life. And thus all the metals used were obtained. A short while later the Russians announced that they too were and army experts detonated a firebomb Sunday that apparently was intended for a highranking South African emissary. The bomb was discovered when a maid at the Qatar Embassy found a package on the doorstep, according to Saud Alameri, wife of the ambassador. Mrs. Alameri said the maid noticed that the package bore the address of the nearby home of Sybrand Visagie. South Africa's top representative to the International Monetary Fund. Police did not confirm that the package bore Visagie's address.
